Conferees Agree Taxes Must Be Raised

Washington, July 21 — (P) — The senate-house economic committee agreed unanimously today that federal taxes should be increased immediately to put the country on a pay-as-you-go basis in the Korean crisis.

The committee discussed no figures, but Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) told reporters he feels each individual's tax bill should be jacked up 10 per cent at once.

"At least that," O'Mahoney added.

The committee holds what amounts to an advisory position on all economic matters.

Actual tax legislation is handled by separate house and senate groups.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the tax writing house ways and means also has taken a stand that war costs should be on a pay-as-you-go basis as far as possible.

O'Mahoney said the economic committee agreed that taxes should be increased on both corporations and individuals, and that controls on consumer credit should be tightened.

Members of the committee — five Republicans and four Democrats — were present — looked with "great satisfaction," O'Mahoney added, on a move by the house ways and means committee to take up the tax question at once.

Russia Says U. S. Starting Another War

Moscow, July 21 — (P) — Moscow's press and radio gave top play today to President Truman's message to congress and declared it proved America is laying the groundwork for World War III.

The report, carried in a Tass dispatch from Washington, said "Truman admits the United States is strengthening its preparations for war, both in Europe and on the American continent."

The Soviet news agency dispatch said "Truman on July 20 sent a message to congress in which he called for measures which are designed to broaden the scale of American aggression in Korea and other places and are pushing the U. S. A. along the path of mobilization for war."

"In his message," Tass said, "Truman tries to picture United States aggression in Korea as a peace mission of the U. S. A."

"Trying to justify openly aggressive acts of the United States in Korea," the dispatch continued, "Truman refers to the illegal decisions of the security council of June 25 and June 27 and July 7, adopted, as it is well known, in violation of the U. N. statutes."

(Tass referred to the council's condemnation of the Northern Korean invasion of South Korea and its call for military support of the South Koreans.)

The United States President, Tass said, ignored the reaction of the world's progressive public, and also the position of many members of the U. N. who have "refused in practice to participate in armed American intervention in Korea."

Thomas Sees No Cotton Controls Next Year

Washington, July 21 — (P) — Chairman Elmer Thomas of the senate agriculture committee says it is probable there will be no production controls on cotton in 1951.

The Oklahoma Democrat based his opinion yesterday on increased domestic consumption and exports of cotton, together with prospects for a small crop this year.

Thomas also expressed belief the government will carry out this year's cotton program without a loss.

The senator noted in a statement that Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has until Oct. 15 to decide whether controls will be imposed.

The law requires that allotments and marketing quotas may be invoked only in event supplies for the new crop year exceed prospective exports and domestic requirements plus a reserve of 30 per cent, Thomas said.

Walkout Forces Kaiser-Frazer Plant to Close

Detroit, July 21 — (P) — The Kaiser-Frazer automobile plant was closed today by a strike of CIO United Auto Workers.

Workmen began leaving benches at 11 p.m. last night in protest of the suspension of a union shift chairman, Ralph Clark.

Kaiser-Frazer employs 10,000.

Russians on Good Behavior Near Germany

Berlin, July 21 — (P) — The Russians appeared today to be putting in a "good behavior" front in Berlin for this week's Communist rally, being attended by high Communist members from far and wide.

Slow-down tactics imposed last week have been stopped.

East German officials agreed today on a "basis for discussion" with West Berlin on resumption of electric power, cut off July 1.

The Russians notified the air safety center in advance of fighter plane flights between Dailgow and Brandenburg, over the western edges of Berlin last night. Lately some flights have been observed that were not posted in the four power center.

Meanwhile the Socialist Unity (Communist) party rally entered its second day without any clue to the purpose behind the visit of the highest-ranking Communists ever to visit Berlin.

The delegates from the Communist countries attended the party caucus this morning only as observers. The East Berlin controlled press concentrated its attention on the German party activities without hinting at any major conclave on international questions such as the Korean war or the thorny Yugoslav Tito problem.

The Cominform members are virtually inaccessible, guarded by East German "peoples police" as they move from hotel to party meetings and back.

The East government made fanfare out of the official opening of the first postwar steel furnace in Brandenburg at the Siemens-Martin plant. Officials reported to the party rally the furnace would pour out steel "for peace."

The capacity was not disclosed. Three more furnaces are to be built, minister for industry Fritz Selbmann said, with the last one being activated December 21, Stalin's birthday.

The Cominform bosses yesterday heard East Germany's Communist president tell a party rally that his people would fight beside Russia in any new world war.

Home Front Much Like Last War

Washington, July 21 — (UP) — The home front today presented an appearance reminiscent of World War II.

Prices were rising and retail sales were up. The military was stepping up its procurement program. Industrial leaders were curtailing civilian production, but assuring the public there is plenty for all without hoarding. Legislators were talking of raising taxes.

President Truman went over the effect of the Korean war on the domestic economy yesterday with his top advisers.

Conferees at the White House parley included Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the national security resources board, Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder, Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman and W. Averell Harriman, the President's special adviser on foreign affairs.

The joint congressional committee on the economic report was also scheduled to talk over the situation at a closed meeting.

There were these other home front developments:

The federal reserve board reported that, under the impetus of scarce buying, department store sales last week were 24 per cent higher than a year ago.

The National Association of Home Builders urged its members to curtail their unprecedented building boom in accordance with Mr. Truman's wishes.

15-Year-Old Negro Drowns in Mill Pond

A 15-year-old Hope Negro, Robert Dennis, drowned about 11:30 a. m. today in the Gunter Lumber Company's log pond. More than two hours in an iron lung failed to revive him.

The youth was swimming with two companions, Joe L. Cooper, 14, and W. A. Howard, 13, who saw him go down but were unable to get him out. One ran to the nearby Bruner-Ivory Hardware Co. office to summon help.

Hendrix Spragins, Hardware Co. employe called Fire Chief Pap Willis and Wilson Britt and the trio got the body out of the 8 foot water. He was placed in an iron lung on the bank of the pond and at 1:45 all hope of saving him was abandoned, despite the efforts of the firemen, Mr. Spragins and Dr. J. M. Martindale.

He was the son of Otis Dennis, who according to some neighbors 'had gone fishing'.

Spotty Rains But Arkansas Generally Fair

By The Associated Press

There were a few wet spots but generally pleasant weather appeared in prospect for most of the nation today.

There was a narrow belt of rain from Maryland and Virginia southward through the Tennessee valley into Arkansas. Another showery area was in the central great plains while Minnesota and the Dakotas also had some rain. Elsewhere the weather bureau said fair weather prevailed.

Temperatures continued on the warm side over the southern states and most of the western states and were near or slightly below normal elsewhere. Coldest readings were in the midwest, with readings in Michigan dipping into the 40's in the early morning hours. The low at Chicago and Detroit was 55.

The mercury soared to 107 yesterday at Phoenix, Ariz., and Blythe, Calif.

Shanhouse Entertains Employees

Last night at Fair park W. Shanhouse, Inc. local garment plant, entertained employees and their families with a barbecue. Some 350 persons attended.

After the feast talks were made by R. W. DuVal, general manager of W. Shanhouse Sons, Inc., Madge King, international representative of United Garment Workers of America Mrs. Mabel Sims and Mrs. Velma Cox, floor ladies at the local factory, Mrs. Avia Culp, president of Local 348 UGWA, and J. W. Cleary, manager of the Hope factory.

In recognition of their past efforts and looking forward to a 5th year of operation in Hope, the firm presented each employee with a plastic raincoat by the Driedick Division of the Rockford, Firm.

Army Drops Rigid Recruit Requirements

Sgt. 1st Warren G. Short of the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station in Hope announced today the new regulations have been received changing the mental requirements for regular army applicants to the same score required for men being drafted under the current Draft Law.

Sgt. Short stated that this will afford enlistment opportunities to men between the ages of 17 and 34 years of age who have previously been rejected because of failure to meet the higher mental requirements of the Regular army during the past several months.

Sgt. Short urged all men between these ages to visit their nearest US Army and USAP Recruiting Station located at the City Hall in Hope immediately for full information on the current mental requirements for voluntary enlistment in the Regular Army.

Cadillac to Produce Army Tanks

Detroit, July 21 — (P) — The army is negotiating with the Cadillac division of General Motors for mass production of tanks.

Col. David J. Crawford, commander of the Detroit arsenal, confirmed negotiations are under way and predicted a contract will be worked out within a few days.

Col. Crawford declined to say what type tank Cadillac will build, but unconfirmed reports said it would be the new 28-ton light tank. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, has described it as "superior in maneuverability and operations to any type ever seen in warfare."

Cadillac was a major tank producer in World War II.

U. S. Army Men Not Ready to Use A-Bomb

Washington, July 21 — (P) — The armed forces, for purely military reasons, take a dim view of suggestions that use of the atomic bomb might end the Korean war quickly.

Military officials question whether the A-bomb could produce results in Korea — where there are few good targets for a mass destruction weapon — sufficient to justify dipping into the U. S. atomic arsenal, which is necessarily limited in size.

The Korean fighting is essentially a battle between ground armies, although with air support, and in the case of our side, with naval aid.

The A-bomb could conceivably be used against ground forces. But to make profitable such use of the weapon so expensive in terms of material, production man-hours and money would require that there be thousands of tens of thousands of troops concentrated in an area a mile or less in radius.

Such concentrations of North Korean troops do not exist. At the front, they are deployed along a straggling line. There are no ports where masses of their men and equipment might pile up. At some points there are rail or highway junctions, but North Korean troops flow through these points rather than congest in large numbers.

Even if it were decided to use atomic bombs against enemy forces deployed at the battle zone, the terrain would pose a stiff problem.

The front — like almost all of Korea — is mountainous country, with ridges and valleys cutting across the landscape. The effect of an atomic bomb is drastically reduced by such terrain, as was demonstrated by the wartime attacks on Japan, because the ridges shield areas from the blast.

The use of A-bombs against strategic targets — the centers of war production — is deemed equally impractical, simply because there are almost no targets of strategic importance in Communist North Korea.

To Lift All Restrictions on Services

Washington, July 21 — (P) — The senate armed services committee voted unanimously today to take all restrictions off the size of the armed forces and lengthen all enlistments one year.

The house armed services committee also voted, 18 to 1, to keep all enlisted personnel in service for a year after their enlistments expire. It will be considering the request of President Truman to lift ceilings on size of the armed forces. Rep. Towse (R-NJ) cast the only vote against extending enlistments.

In taking the action on the two bills, the senate committee also agreed to strike from one of them a restriction that the strength of the regular corps shall not exceed 20 per cent of the authorized size of the regular navy.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) told his colleagues that under present world conditions he does not believe the United States can have too many marines. The marines are trained for amphibious landings.

The committee action would suspend indefinitely present limitations which fix the top strength of the armed forces at 2,005,882 men.

The quick action came after navy, army and air force officers said they probably would lose 193,000 trained fighting men during the next year through expiration of voluntary enlistments.

UN Gathering Forces From Other Nations

Lake Success, N. Y., July 21 — (UP) — The United Nations is secretly recruiting a large expeditionary force from 15 to 25 nations to fight beside American GIs in Korea, informed sources indicated today.

This Allied force was in the making despite an almost total lack of public response by member nations to Secretary-General Trygve Lie's appeal for ground forces to join U. S. units at the front.

Eight or nine countries actively interested in sending troops to the UN's AEF already are consulting with Lie. A number of other states are consulting with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's UN command through Washington, the U. S. mission to the UN, or American embassies abroad.

It was believed that movements of the UN force will be kept secret until the Allied troops have landed on the Korean peninsula.

Neither U. S. nor UN sources could confirm officially that a UN AEF was forming. But it was known that exhaustive consultations were going on in connection with problems of transportation, supply and standardization of arms.

U. S. sources said only that the American government was "encouraged by the initial response" to Lie's appeal for more aid and that it was expected that more states would be heard from.

So far, however, only two countries — Nicaragua and Thailand — have made any definite offer of foot soldiers since Lie sent his appeal for aid to 50 non-Communist nations.

Under the projected plan, the U. S. presumably would be called on to equip troops from other countries to that standard ammunition could be used. A program of standardizing the arms of the Western democracies to conform to weapons used by U. S. forces was started soon after the end of World War II. Even if other nations pledged forces now it was pointed out, a considerable period would be required to train those troops in the use of U. S. arms.

Harris Points to Record of Performance

Congressman Oren Harris brought his campaign for re-election in the Seventh Arkansas district to Hope last night with a speech in the livestock arena at Fair park. He was introduced by Mayor Lyle Brown.

"I come to you as a seasoned and experienced member of the Congress of the United States," he said, "and I am confident I can better represent my people today than when I first asked your vote and confidence 10 years ago."

Mr. Harris said the record showed that during his service in the congress he had consistently supported all worthwhile agricultural programs, including soil conservation, price support, and the others.

He emphasized his role in promoting soil conservation and flood control programs, notable among the latter being the construction of the big New River dam near Fulton, Mo., and authorization of extensive levee protection work on Red river in the vicinity of Fulton.

He said he had always done his level best for timber and oil resources, pointing out that the United States today has the best forestry service in the world.

And Arkansas farms now are 69 per cent electrified as the result of federal programs looking to the improvement of American living conditions everywhere, he continued.

Congressman Harris pointed out, in view of today's Korean crisis: "All my time in congress I have been outspoken in support of arms and financial programs designed to withstand the march of dictators — and I am confident these programs will stand us in as good stead against the aggressors in Korea as they did against Hitler and Mussolini."

Mr. Harris attacked his opposition because "He has not offered you any program whatsoever." The congressman said his opponent in the last 10 days of the campaign two years ago announced he would seek repeal of the Taft-Hartley law — "a frank effort to pick up some labor votes. But today he hasn't even mentioned the Taft-Hartley law, indicating he has no Continued on Page Two

Many Believe Gen. Dean Will Fight Free

An American Command Post in Korea, July 21 — (P) — 261st low officer today held firm hope that Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, unreported, nearly 24 hours in the thick of the Taejon fighting, "will get out."

But fear for his safety flew by the hour. The front-line fighting commander of the U. S. Twenty-Fourth Infantry division was last reported leading a bazooka team fighting off Red tanks.

Dean's staff tried to reassure themselves with this declaration:

"The general can take care of himself. He may have to walk, but he'll get out."

Said Cpl. Ralph Vargason of Newark Valley, N. Y.:

"All of our regular bazooka teams were so busy General Dean took a couple of men downtown and went after two tanks. I saw him passing ammunition to the men and directing fire."

The Red tanks moved on Taejon at dawn Thursday. They circled around and around the American command post, firing as they went.

Dean had a record of fearless fighting. Both in World War II and in the Korean war he exposed himself to enemy fire to lead his men.

A few days ago he pulled some of his front line troops out of the fire in heavy fighting near the Kum river by a personally led attack.

Dean, who was awarded a Distinguished Service Cross in World War II for bravery, was well-liked by his men. The tall, musty-haired general put his fighting before his personal safety.

The 50-year-old general has served as military governor of Korea from 1947 to 1949 and temporarily was commander of U. S. army forces in Korea.

Pays to Know Your PMA Committeemen

Do you know your community committeemen, and are you using them? asks Earl N. Martindale, Chairman of the Hempstead County PMA committee.

These committeemen were elected by you and the other farmers in your community, and they are there to help with conservation problems, with price support problems, and with acreage allotments and marketing quotas, Mr. Martindale says.

"And," he added, "when they don't have the answers, they may be able to help find them."

These committeemen do not receive a salary and are paid expenses only for the time actually engaged in PMA administrative work. They are on call at any time to help their neighbors with any PMA programs. The Chairman pointed out that, in administering PMA programs for the 1948-1949 fiscal year, community committeemen worked an average of 6 and half days, for which they received a national average of $6.30 per day.

PMA Community Committeemen of Hempstead County are the following:

Hold Ground After Leaving City of Taejon

Tokyo, Saturday, July 22 — (P) — The battered U. S. 24th division was reported holding high ground southeast of burning Taejon, blocking the North Korean army's advance.

Field dispatches said the division had fought aggressively to hold up their conquest of Taejon for days.

General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters did not issue usual midnight communications on the Korean fighting, saying there has been no change in the situation.

Field accounts said the fighting commander, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, had been reported in the battle zone for hours.

Early today, MacArthur's public information officer said, "We have no confirmation one way or another regarding General Dean."

The officer added that a U. S. army rules it could not even confirm that he was missing until an investigation was completed.

In the last headquarters communique issued Friday afternoon, the 24th division was described as stalling the Communist advance after the fall early Friday of the devastated rail and highway station city of Taejon.

Soldier and airman reports of the bitter battle said the division used four tanks with a white star markings on their turrets. All four were knocked out, two each by a tank and an aircraft.

Superior numbers of Communist tanks and aircraft were reported to have been used in the attack.

But that victory cost the division at least 13 tanks — all knocked by the GIs' new 3.5 inch tank launcher — and others damaged.

Late this afternoon, they failed to launch an expected attack on strong new U. S. positions in hills four miles east of Taejon. Apparently, the Associated Press Correspondent, William R. Moore, from a command post in Korea, said "are without tanks now" and "awaiting new armor."

This morning, less than 12 hours after the former U. S. headquarters was given up, American artillery was trained on mountains where bands of Reds were reported infiltrating.

Presumably, the Reds were beginning to repeat their familiar pattern: Strike around the flanks of the American front at supporting positions in the rear.

However, Moore reported, no Red attack had been launched late afternoon.

It will take time, he said, for the Reds to bring in new armor. The Americans destroyed bridge, tunnels, rail lines and highways as they withdrew.

And the Far East air forces, a communique indicated, new tanks may require some time getting to the Taejon area. It said a B-29 bombing of Seoul today had damaged rail yards, lines to heavily ask to "prevent movements to the southern rail lines for some time."

Balancing this withdrawal, the naval guns destroyed the Communist communication station Yonkook on the east coast, miles north of the beachhead, established Wednesday by the Cavalry division (mechanized) — which landed earlier this week — was not reported by General MacArthur's communique.

General MacArthur said the loss of Taejon was "no special significance" from the military point of view. Advanced American positions and the provisional government of South Korea had moved from the city several days ago.

DOC

People pay me in cash, you know. But I get goods, and services aplenty. He grinned a little as he applied antiseptic to the wound. "But I hadn't thought about the money end of it. All money is good for it to buy medicine and supplies from the druggist over in Glasgow. My patients give me everything else I need. My credit's still good with the druggist."

DUSTY RHODES winced as the antiseptic bit into his raw wound. Then he said, "How do you expect to pay the druggist and support a wife besides, Doc?" His voice had lost its drawl.

"Wife? What wife, Dusty?"

"You know what wife. Quit stallin'. We're talking about Kit." Doc took a roll of bandages out of his bag and started to apply it to Dusty's wound. "Kit doesn't want to marry me, Dusty," he said. "She likes somebody else better."

"Someone else?" Dusty's voice was incredulous.

"Yes, Dusty. She's waiting for you now, over at her house." Doc said, fastening the bandage with adhesive tape. "There, your arm's fixed. You'd better get over there right away and see her."

Dusty thumbed back the hat off his sweat-matted hair. "Let me get this straight, Doc."

"There's nothing to get straight, Dusty. Kit likes you better. She told me so. You're getting a mighty fine girl for a wife, Dusty. The best there is in my book."

Dusty seized Doc's hand and pumped vigorously. "Honest? Why, I've asked that girl to marry me so many times that I've lost count. Why didn't she say yes?"

"Maybe she didn't know till she had someone else around for comparison," Doc replied. "Ask her again and she'll take you up on it."

"I'm glad that slimy Toad was lyin' when he told me I'd lost my girl," Dusty looked up at Little Doc again. "Can I borrow a shirt, Doc? I'm in a hurry."

"Sure," said Doc. "But first, will the news? What happened to Toad?"

"Constable Butch Bell found a cabin with a dead man inside. He and Toad were in there. Long Andy and so it wasn't accidental when we found him. It turned out to be a little gun ruckus. Long Andy hated the sneaking Toad and shot him on sight, but Toad lasted long enough to put a bullet in Long Andy's head. During the smoke, I got hicked in the arm by a stray chunk of lead. I left Butch to bring in the two dead men, while I got patched up. And—"

"Toad cheated Kit out of her hotel," Doc said.

"Yes, Butch told me," said Dusty. "And the deal was a fraud. Kit will get back the hotel. It seems that Blackie Lambert forged some I.O.U.'s and told her they were given to him by her father for gambling debts to him and Toad. I shot Blackie that night and that's partly the reason, but he was tryin' to cold-deck me in a game too. Toad took the I.O.U.'s to Kit and she gave him the hotel."

"And yet you let Toad tell you things about Kit?"

"When a man likes a girl he don't use common sense," said Dusty.

BROWNIE appeared just as Little Doc found a clean shirt for Dusty, and added:

"Brownie wants a job punching cows, Dusty. He's a friend of mine."

"If you're a friend of Doc's you got the job, Brownie," said Dusty. Brownie shook his head. "No, Mr. Rhodes. I can't take it. I throwed in with Long Andy and Shorty on a horse-stealing deal."

"You must've had a good reason."

"He was broke and he had a wife and baby in Chinook," Doc explained.

"But you wouldn't want to hire a horse thief, Mr. Rhodes," said Brownie.

Congressmen Discuss Wage, Price Controls

Washington, July 21 — (AP) — The possibility of price-wage controls was discussed in administration circles in congress today. Lawmakers demanded action to take profits out of the Korean war.

Most of these demands came in the form of proposals for early enactment of an excess profits tax aimed at profiteering.

But one administration official who declined to be quoted by name told a reporter that unless there is a recession in rapidly increasing prices, controls of that nature may not be far away.

President Truman left the road open in his Wednesday message to congress to call later for such curbs on the economy but they were omitted from the administration's defense production bill.

Administration lieutenants said they have the votes lined up to get that measure approved by the senate banking committee late next week, although they conceded they may have to make changes in some of its provisions.

Some Republicans complained that the powers requested by the President are too broad. Some Democrats said they don't want congress to vote authority in the bill for the government to go into competition with private business.

Senator Douglas (D-Ill.), a member of the banking committee which will begin hearings on the economic control bill Monday, told a reporter he thinks the best way of avoiding price controls is to clamp increased taxes on those who might be tempted to profiteer in

Campaigns Get Into High Gear

Little Rock, July 21 — (AP) — Governor McMath today mixed ribbon-snipping with his campaigning for a second term nomination.

The governor during the day was to cut a ribbon opening a new road on the campus of Arkansas State college, Jonesboro performing a similar function for recently paved highway 139 from Monette north to the Missouri line, and dedicate a natural gas system at Pochontas. He'll return to Jonesboro for a campaign speech tonight.

Former Gov. Ben Laney plugged away at trying to beat McMath for that second term nomination and therefore for the governorship.

From Northeast Arkansas, where he's been for several days, Laney headed for South Arkansas. Tonight he'll speak at his former home town of Camden.

McMath and Laney are chief candidates for governor at next Tuesday's preferential primary. Both men — and most other Arkansans — believe the issue of legislation of the Republican 80th congress so that farmers commanded a price on last year's 16-million-acre cotton crop of between 30 and 31 cents a pound. Without any price support at all the crop would have gone for 8 or 10 cents. And if the 80th congress' law hadn't been amended the crop would have brought around 16 cents."

which the governor of Arkansas could next January will be decided then.

For today's appearances, McMath flew from Fort Smith, where he last night again lashed into Laney for what he said was a "vicious situation" in the state revenue department during the Laney administration.

He declared that "Business Ben" was the man you had to do business with if you wanted a liquor permit in those days. And he quoted former Revenue Commissioner Otto Cook as testifying to a Sebastian county (Fort Smith) grand jury in 1947 that Laney himself, based on every applicant for beer and liquor licenses. The grand jury found, McMath said, that "a substantial campaign contribution was an unwritten condition to obtaining and holding a liquor permit." Laney, who's seeking a third term after a voluntary two-year retirement, said at Caraway last night that any "rule" against voting against a man for a second term (which McMath seeks) had "disappeared."

Explanation of Order on Home Buying

(Editor's note: This is the first of three stories explaining what the government has done to tighten up its help to the home-buyers.)

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, July 21 — (P) — Home building has been going on at a fast clip. This is fine in a normal times.

But now, with the country trying to build a military machine in a hurry, home-building raises a couple of problems:

1. New homes require a lot of materials which the government also needs. Steel for insurance.

2. As the government takes some of these materials, making materials and now homes scarcer, the price on new and old homes goes up.

To put a brake on such price rises and still let the government get the materials it needs, President Truman this week did this:

He ordered some of the government agencies which help people buy homes to make home-buying just a little tougher.

He could do this under laws already on the books, without need for new laws by congress.

He gave his orders to three government agencies:

1. The housing and home finance agency, which helps civilians.

2. The veterans administration, which helps veterans.

3. And the federal national mortgage association — called "Fannie Mae" — which helps banks.

Taking them one at a time, this is what the three agencies do and what Mr. Truman told them they must now do.

1. The housing and home finance agency not only insures banks against losses on loans they make to citizens to buy and repair homes but it also helps cities to build low-rental housing for low-income families.

The President has ordered HHFA to tighten up all along the line — on its insurance on loans and its help to cities.

2. The veterans administration has been guaranteeing lenders, like banks, on loans they make to veterans for home-buying.

In some cases, where veterans couldn't get home loans from banks, VA could make direct loans to veterans.

But the President has directed VA to be a little less generous with its guarantees and to use up slowly the money it has for direct loans.

3. The federal national mortgage association buys mortgages from banks which have made loans to people so they can buy homes. The mortgage gives a bank the right to take over if the borrower doesn't pay up on his loan.

The FNMA was created because a bank may get too much of its money tied up in such mortgage loans. If this reaches the point where the bank can't make any more such loans, home-building suffers.

If the bank could sell its mortgages to someone and get fresh money for making more home loans, home-buildin would stay steady. And that's what the government wanted in peace time.

So congress set up Fannie Mae to buy up mortgage s from over-loaded banks and sell them to some organization which was willing to buy them.

(Mortgages can be sold and resold at a profit because any home-buyer who gets a loan must pay interest on it.)

Now the President has told "Fannie Mae" to cut down on its mortgage-buying and get rid of a lot of the mortgages which it has bought but still hasn't sold.

The staple food of big and little fish is plankton, a great variety of plants and animals carried by tides and currents.

Must Control Prices Insist U. S. Leaders

Washington, July 21 — (A) — Disturbed by increases in prices and evidence of consumer hoarding, the government is working on a report to convince the public that it need not fear food shortages.

The report, being drafted by the agriculture department, will be made public Saturday night.

Repeated assurances by President Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan that food supplies are plentiful were said by officials to have slowed down, but not stopped, the heavy consumer buying of sugar, canned goods and other non-perishable foods that started with Korean war.

Officials hoped that a detailed report, giving statistical information on supplies and production prospects of various major food items, would serve as a clincher to their argument that there is no justification for hoarding or for price increases.

The report is being prepared by the department's bureau of agricultural economics and will take into account the possible effects of the war and increased military spending on the market for food and farm products.

It is expected to say that, on the basis of present conditions, there is no valid reason for a higher general level of food prices during the next six months.

Prices of some foods, it will say, should go down in the fall—particularly meats. Slaughter supplies of meat animals will increase from the normal low levels of the summer to put a much larger supply of meats in butcher shops.

The report is expected to state that large farm production, plus big cold-storage stocks, should maintain supplies of eggs and poultry at high levels, with prices advancing only slightly from summer quotations.

It will point out that supplies of wheat for flour and bakery products are 30 to 40 per cent above anticipated market demands for the grain. It also will state that feed grain supplies are ample to maintain production of meats, milk and poultry products at a higher level than at present.

Daughter of Polio Leader Is Victim

Richmond, Va., July 21 — (UP) — Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, learned today that his daughter has polio.

Tests taken at the medical college of Virginia hospital confirmed the fears O'Connor had when he requested that 30-year-old Mrs. Sidney Culver be admitted.

Dr. Lee Sutton, head of the hospital pediatrics department, who too personal charge of Mrs. Culver's case, said "she definitely has polio. It's a light case. Non-paralytic at present. She's doing very nicely. We have hopes she will completely recover."

He added that while polio mostly strikes children, adults older than Mrs. Culver have been stricken.

Mrs. Culver, who lives with her husband, on a Clarke county horse-breeding farm, was brought to the hospital yesterday in an ambulance. The family physician, Dr. John R. Troxell of Winchester, Va., had tentatively diagnosed her illness as infantile paralysis.

O'Connor, whose knowledge of the disease was acquired first hand from his late friend and law partner, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has devoted much of his time to combatting polio.

As head of the national foundation, he sponsored the annual Roosevelt birthday balls and March-of-Dime campaigns to raise funds for carrying on the work. He also is president of the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation and numerous other health groups.
